Peter De Cupere presents Scentedo2, based on the idea of scented O2 (air). Visitors can't take real fuel in the fuel station but they can smell three different fragrances that refer to the nature, the community and the air pollution.

A fuel station (original size) made in fake concrete on a parking. There are three scents refering to the nature, the community and the air pollution. The fragrances are grass or lavendel, Dutch black candy of bubblegum and the smell of exhault in combination with burned meat and asphalt fragrance.

(Smells not activated till May 2010)
